

A message from our president...

I (Randy) started in the security industry in 1980.

I first learned to "rough in" homes to accommodate central vacuum, intercom, bell telephone, cable and burglary alarm systems, during construction. I then moved up to learn the complete installation of all of the above systems and programming for the future homeowner's move in dates. This work continued till 1986.

During 1987, I moved on to work for Chubb Security at their Toronto Head Office. Where I began to learn all facets of the developing, commercial security industry. I worked in the commercial installations department installing new Alarm, Video and Card Access systems, primarily in shopping malls, financial institutions and larger retail chains.

Chubb is where I got my first experience installing systems for High-Security applications like gold refineries & Government offices, it was a truly exciting time to be an installer. This came to an unexpected end in 1992 when Canada entered a recession that affected even the largest of companies, like Chubb. Mass layoffs were implemented, I was asked to return through the main entrance and continue my work as a subcontractor instead of an employee with benefits.

Persevering, I partnered with a fellow associate from the service department & opened my first company in 1992. Returning to Chubb as a sub-contractors, we created a synergy that was strong enough to continue on ourselves, and expand as entrepreneurs. I'd say that learning to run a privately held business from 1992 to 1997 was a fantastic building block.

In 1998 I made a bold move to strike out on my own. Leaving our subcontracting partnership behind. I created a new company called RF Security Group. Later incorporating and slowly gaining momentum by "word of mouth" and sales to sustain a livelihood led to establishing my own business. A business that has flourished and is successful to this day.

The rest is history, so to say. With many businesses both large & small relying on what is known today as RF Security Group Inc. to provide our highest level of Alarm, Video, Card Access, Personal GPS & Asset Tracking/Management tools, I look forward to each challenge every phone call we receive presents.

I personally wonder what is going to be needed and how we can provide an innovative solution that not only addresses our customers current needs but maintains the flexibility needed to be a "future ready" system.

I attribute this ability to my many years of experience. Confirming what I have said since RFSG conception. . .

" Your peace of mind... is our inspiration "
